I wonder what those seagoing bombs do to fish. An ordinary stick of dynamite exploded in the sea kills all the fish in the neighborhood, and bombs and torpedoes must cause a terrific destruction of marine life, but I have never seen any mention of it. Probably because it is unimportant compared with the destruction of human life involved. We will probably learn something about it when target practice begins on bomb ranges in Gulf waters.—Don McLeod in Apalachicola Times.

THE BLANDING CASE

For many months there has been an aura of suspicion that too much money was spent in buying a site for Camp Blanding and in building barracks and other necessary facilities for an army of 60,000 men near Starke, Fla.

A committee of the United States senate finally is making an inquiry into the situation which we hope will bring to light the truth and dissipate the fog of rumors that have been swirling about Florida and in Washington ever since construction first was started at the camp.

It is, of course, known that the cost of construction exceeded original estimates by more than double. Complaint has been made that there were numerous other sites available in Florida where it would not have been necessary to fill in large areas of swamp-land.

Maybe so. And if so, this senate inquiry should bring out the facts. Obviously, some engineering figures in the original estimates were all wet. Perhaps, there was a lot of boneheadedness somewhere along the line, as one senator remarked yesterday.

Whatever it was, the people are entitled to know who to blame.

MULES IN DEBATE

Representative Strahorn and Senator Beall have illustrated debate with the fairly reliable mule. Representative Strahorn's mule was one he used to ride and it kicked up a lot of fuss until it found things were not as bad as it had feared. Senator Beall's mule belonged to a neighbor and used to run heading into fences and barns, not because it was loco but just because it didn't give a — — — Tallahassee Democrat.

TUPELO HONEY

Florida's tupelo honey harvest, confined to the famed Apalachicola River valley, began this week.

Producers are of the opinion the crop this season will be somewhat less than in some years past, due principally to adverse weather conditions during the peak of the producing period, which means during the height of the blossoming of the tupelo gum trees.

Utilities Ready—

imposing the slightest strain on our Government or adding to the American people's tax burdens.

"Today $14,000,000.00 of private capital are invested in the electric power industry—translated into generating plants and thousands of miles of interconnected transmission lines. Separate companies could not have developed this national network by themselves. Only by expanding under the common ownership and coordinated plans of belated company corporations was the industry, through the pooled resources of finance, manpower and engineering knowledge, able to create this nation-wide shield of power which is today one of America's strongest defense weapons.

"Think what an enormous item this would be in our national defense budget, if these vital facilities had to be built by the Government. More important, it would require years of extraordinary effort, as well as billions of dollars, to duplicate these power sources and lines. But they are ready today, not five years from now. They are already performing their duty."

Texas Town Claims—

by any other town or locality. In other words we think we have the right to feel that it is our trademark through priority and that it would be the sporting thing for other towns not to sue it. We are sure that Mayor Dulany's section is a perfectly marvelous one and that it was just a coincidence on his part that he used our slogan when he was interviewed. We hope that both you and Mayor Dulany may have the pleasure of visiting our section which is peopled by descendants of very fine old American families. The population is more than 99% native born Americans.

There is also a good story back of this slogan which was originated by the late Will N. Harrison, a loyal citizen who some forty years ago used the phrase in tiny letters on his business cards. In 1915 the unique statement on one of his cards attracted the attention of President Woodrow Wilson and precipitated a pleasant conference in Kansas City where the President was making his speech on "Preparedness" prior to his entry into World War I. Following the publicity given that incident the Greenville Chamber of Commerce officially adopted the slogan.

Womanless Wedding Scheduled May 30

The old saying—there fun than a barrel of monkeys—won't be exaggerated a little bit on Friday night, May 29, when the Canal Point Parent-Teacher association sponsors a "Womanless Wedding" at the school auditorium. The play always attracts a capacity crowd in any town where it is presented.

If you can imagine a wedding to be conducted with men taking all parts—then you have a slight idea of what it's all about. Hand-some brutes in evening gowns—high heeled shoes and all the necessary accessories—will be a sight worth seeing.

The cast will be announced in next week's issue of this newspaper. Watch for the names of those who are going to take part in this marvellous presentation of wedded bliss. You are in for a splendid evening of entertainment and the cost is to be so small that you won't miss it from your week's allowance.

Reduce Limit On Black Bass Catch

Tallahassee, May 22.—The House voted today, 66 to 14, to keep annual licenses on fresh water sport's fishermen, except those who fish only with pole and line within the county of their residence.

If the Senate agrees, rod and reel fishermen will pay $1 for a Statewide license. If they want to do pole and line fishing, they will buy another license for $1. Pole and line fishermen who go out of their residence county will pay $1 license.

The present license for freshwater fishing is $2 for a Statewide license, with no license required for fishing only in the county of legal residence.

Rep. Simpson of Jefferson, who sponsored the license revision, said the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's annual revenues would be increased about $40,000.

The House passed, 67 to 0, a Senate-approved bill reducing the day's bag limit on black bass from 12 to 8, and trimming the maximum legal catch of smaller species of fresh water fish, such as bream, from 30 to 20.

Passage, 56, to 10, was accorded a bill by Rep. Dowds of Putnam, authorizing confiscation of motor boats and other fishing equipment if a boat contains more than 16 black bass.

Rep. Johnson of Lake steered to passage, 67 to 1, another bill reducing from $2.50 to $1.50 the annual license charged for renting boats used in fresh water fishing.

FULLER'S FULMINATIONS

by Fuller Warren

In 1926, the late, great, and well-beloved Will Rogers went to Russia on a self-appointed diplomatic mission. He sent back reports of his trip which were published in the Saturday Evening Post. Ten years later, in the spring of 1936, a fellow from Florida went to Chicago on a fact-finding expedition. He wrote the following report of his trip to Chicago: "For reasons of modesty, the author of this monstrosity must remain anonymous."

"You have doubtless been puzzled by the pull that must have hovered over this City during the past ten days. Well, I'll explain it all. I have been in Chicago, Cook County, Illinois, since April 30th."

"I went there on a two-fold mission. I was up there on a scouting trip for the Democratic Party. No one sent me, I just went on my own hook. And, I was also up there for the purpose of making a statesmanlike study of the model law enforcement methods that afflict Chicago."

"I found a strong sentiment for property. Many people there favor a full dinner pail. Most everyone there seems to think that Roosevelt and the Chicago Cubs will win. Even the most obstinate (if that word troubles you, feel free to look it up in the dictionary) it stopped me the first time I was in it and even now I'm a little hazy about its meaning, but it does sound good. Don't you think? I skeptic would reluctantly concede that Roosevelt would probably get the Democratic nomination in Philadelphia next month."

"I know that scorp will come as a relief to those Democratic scorpards who have been so apprehensive about this matter."

Now, as to the law enforcement methods there—I was unable to appreciate them, so I can't report on that phase of my mission. They did have a little murder trial under way there but I could not be favorably compared with some of our own local productions as to murderous magnificence and splendor of presentation. Why, in this particular case, they had two persons on trial for one murder, whereas here we have one person on trial for two murders. I did a little boasting about our high homicide rate, claiming the championship for our City, but my claim was challenged by a Chicagoan and a citizen of Memphis both of whom claimed their respective villages, like Abou, Ben Adem, "led all the rest." At first I demanded proof, but when feeling began to run so high that it was like Chicago's homicide rate might be increased by at least one corpse, I called off my dogs and conceded the championship to both Cities, share and share alike."

The last day I was there the town was all agog over a rumor that one Scarface, Alas Alphonse, Capone would be shortly released from the Alcatraz calaboose on a legal technicality based upon the use of "the caboose of an in a certain law under which he was indicted, tried and convicted." The city-minded citizens were already planning to welcome the returning hero home. Reflecting on that, and recalling the welcome accorded banker Luke Lea by the citizens of Tennessee several weeks ago, I couldn't help but contrast those welcomes with the dismal reception I received at the Terminal station upon my return, where I was greeted by only a mob of mercenary red-caps with itching palms and avaricious impulses. I wondered if it were worth while to lead a life of public probity and private purity."

I visited many of the great shrines and places of historic interest. I didn't see the hall where William Jennings Bryan won the famous battle with the "Cross of Gold and Crown of Thorns" oration in 1896, but I looked upon the scene of Sally Rand's great triumph with the fans in 1925. I wanted to make a pious pilgrimage out to Cicero, Illinois, to see the old garage there where a holiday holocaust occurred on St. Valentine's Day in 1927 when seven men were slain at the hands of Capone's cohorts, but I was unable to get fitted for a bullet-proof vest, which is regulation equipment for a visiting tourist in Cicero."

Secret people asked me if they were "digging in Florida." At first I thought they were referring to the trouble buried here by the old Spanish pirates, but I soon learned they were inquiring about the Cross-State Canal. I explained that a temporary cessation of hostilities had been made necessary by a shortage of labor, but that as soon as the gubernatorial race was finished, there would be enough unemployed to warrant resumption of the work. There are several other matters of not so momentous importance that I might report, but it occurs to me that you probably were willing to pay anything for this story. I'm going to quit here."

During the melancholy month of May, 1940, this column was conceived and came into being. I say melancholy, for such it was for me, as I had just "dusted" in the Democratic primary of May 7th. Yes, I had been inhumed under an avalanche of adverse votes deeper than the walls of the temple of the moon god in Ur of ancient Chaldeia. This column made its first appearance in some of the more enlightened news organs of the state during the last week in May, 1940. So, it has now reached its initial anniversary.

I hope those of you who take the intellectual hard-tack (a sort of non-nourishing substance remotely resembling bread that is fed to soldiers by impoverished governments when food is scarce) that I pass out in this newspaper each week will pardon me if I "column" this week about this column.

This scrawny scribbling published by twenty-eight newspapers in Florida, and none elsewhere, is published by newspapers in twenty of Florida's sixty-seven counties. Five dailies, the Orlando Sentinel, the Fort Myers News-Press, the Gainesville-Daily Sun, the Winter Haven Chief, and the Ocala Banner lead out this dish of brain palum to their avid and intelligent readers on Sabbath morn. The remaining twenty-three are Florida's most select and discriminating weekly newspapers—those three-read journals."

The newspapers that carry this column, have a combined circulation of well over one hundred thousand. How many of these subscribers read this column, I don't know. And I am not going to run the risk of embarrassment by ascertaining the number.

Two counties, Hillsborough and Polk, have the questionable distinction of having three newspapers that serve up this sapient sauce. Only one city in Florida has the unique "honor" of having two newspapers that carry this column. Palm City, renowned for its excellent strawberries and its intelligent voters, gets a double dose of this stuff. The Enterprise and the Courier have entered into a "treaty" whereby both publish it.

When I started writing this column a year ago, thinking that cities would clamor for it like they do for WPA grants, I promulgated a policy whereby it would be permitted to only one newspaper in each city. Palm City is the only city that has had two newspapers sufficiently enlightened and eager to serve their readers the best as to ask for this strident offer. I was so flattered by their noble request that I promptly abandoned the policy of one to a city."

Although these twenty-eight publishers of Florida have been very generous and patient about putting this weekly guff in their newspapers, only two have recommended it to their readers, without reservations.

The egregious, inflexible, and at times unspeakable John "Red" Davis, of the Lake City Reporter, offered it to the fine people of Columbia County in an endorsement that was positively fulvous in its flattery.

The dignified and decorous, yet very winsome, John Winslett, of the Marianna Floridian, came right out with a front page recommendation. If he had been taken on Dorothy Dix, Beatrice Fairfax, or some other equally renowned expert on love problems, Winslett could have winked much more enthusiastically than he did about this column.

Carl Hanton, the scholarly, erudite, and pungent publisher of the Fort Myers News-Press, came out with a quasi-recommendation that contained nearly as many conditions and reservations as an insurance policy that is prepared especially for the colored trade.

All the other publishers just offered it to their customers, or their cave at emptor (let the buyer beware) basis, without comment one way or the other. Some of the newspapers that published the first few issues of the column dropped it as suddenly as a cullud actor from the Old Country dropped an American hearse upon learning that she had been disinherited. I easily assumed that this was done in response to reader reaction.

Some of the newspapers feature this column on their editorial page. Some of the newspapers place it at random, on first one page and then another, thereby permitting the depressing supposition that it is used as a filler. Some of the publishers print it in the "Palm Beach Fulminations," (except in the Fort Myers News-Press. "Confessions of a Candidate," as though it had a remote connection with some candidacy. I wish he would quit embarrassing me that way.) So much so it is plagiarized that I could hardly afford to try to copyright it. And to try to charge for it would be just as ineffective as complaining about the weather.

If your newspaper is not carrying this column it is no fault of mine. I am ready, able, and willing to send it to you. An irate letter to the publisher of your home paper, demanding "Fulminations," coupled with certain veiled threats if it is not forthcoming might get results.

Miss Elsie Moore, member of this year's graduating class of Columbia High School, Lake City, has never missed a day in making her school attendance. Neither sickness, rain or shine, or any other excuse is charged against her. Look! like some sort of a cog.

Summary of Legislative Activity

By Clyde J. Baser

Fla. News Service, Staff Writer

Tallahassee, May 22.—Finance, or the lack of them, was the main topic of discussion in the legislature last week and probably will continue on through this week and perhaps for the remainder of the session.

Governor Holland's long-awaited recommendations for raising sufficient revenue to bridge the $55,000,000 gap between income and outgo were finally presented to the legislature. They contained no startling innovations and were, on the whole, hailed by legislators and taxpayer groups as sound and constructive.

His first recommendation was an increase of $10 auto tags to $15. He called this tax the fairest and most certain tax available and pointed out that no new collection machinery would be necessary. He also asserted that in view of the fact that Florida levies no personal property tax on cars, the increase would not make the tax paid on automobiles out of proportion to those collected in other states.

The legislature, however, adjourned over the week-end without taking any definite action on this proposal. Considerable opposition has been advanced to the hike in the cost of lower priced tags without a corresponding increase in those in the upper brackets. The probabilities are that a general increase will be made in all tags.

And the school lobby won't like his recommendation that the request for an increase of $250 per teaching unit for the next two years be turned down. However, most students of state affairs recognize that an increase as requested by the Governor in tag prices will fill the hole left in county finances by the repeal of the gross receipts tax, that if county finances are strengthened according to his recommendations, more county money will be available for schools, and finally that the present financial circumstances in the state schools must look nearer at home for any additional money they may want or require.

In other parts of his message he followed the recommendations of the Brookings Institute. They include: outright sale of tax delinquent land after one year with homesteads being sold after two years; assessments based on a full 100 percent valuation instead of varying assessments in various counties; limit on homestead exemption to the part of the building actually used and occupied for personal purposes; an improved method of collecting intangible taxes; and a stricter collection of intangible taxes, with 25 percent going to the counties to provide an incentive to local tax collectors and assessors for efficient enforcement.

Summed up, his financial recommendations are aimed at meeting necessary state expenses as far as possible, with no claim that the state's budget will be balanced, and putting local finances strictly up to local taxing bodies after providing more efficient means for their assessment and collection.

A new tax of one percent on chain inventories over $1,000 has been proposed in the house and apparently has the support of both independent merchants and chain store officials. This will replace the gross receipts tax; however, as practically all stores turn their stocks over several times a year, food stores and some others having a more frequent turn-over, the tax will in the course of a year be considerably less than one-half of one percent levied on sales under the gross receipts tax.

A new graduated tax on chain stores based on the number in the chain in the United States rather than in Florida, is also proposed. This tax ranges from $10 on one store to $200 on each store in chains having more than 100 units.

Several weeks ago this summary pointed out that there were definite indications that the legislature is in a spending mood. Two events last week certainly support that assertion. First, the senate passed its appropriation measure in the sum of $11,708,816, an increase of $1,370,465 in state expenses, and the house appropriation bill will probably be equally as liberal.

Second, both the house and the senate passed the bill creating the Florida State Improvement Commission with unlimited power to spend unlimited sums on "self-liquidating projects for public use and benefit." It awaits only the approval of the Governor to become a law, and as it had the approval of both the Governor and the chairman of the State Road Department, there is no good reason to suppose the Governor will withhold his approval. Advocates of this commission have tried to reassure some who are viewing with alarm the broad scope of authority granted to the 3-man commission by saying that the next legislature can repeal the act if it proves unsatisfactory. But as the first proposal, which will probably be acted upon by this commission is the spending of some $2 million dollars for a four-lane highway down the east coast and a branch to Tampa, with several other millions also in immediate prospect on projects deemed necessary, repealing the act after certificates of indebtedness of $0 to 60 million dollars have been issued will be like trying to unscramble eggs by legislative enactment.

Considering possible benefits, the appropriation of $500,000 for a state lobby in Washington will be generally approved. Another sales tax bill was killed. Sales tax bills seem to have more lives than cats. Two more gambling licensing acts were killed; a tabulation of the number of similar bills introduced would be interesting. It now looks as though the new congressman will be elected at large. A ten million dollar pension bill has been brought to the floor of the house; a bill granting $15 per month pensions to farmers who have worked 40 years has been introduced. And the legislature has made a new gesture toward the Townsendites by recommending to Congress the enactment of the Townsend Bill.

Holland Sees Gas Tax Permanently Settled By Law

Tallahassee, Fla. May 15.—Four bills and one resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to revise the entire system of allocating millions of dollars of Florida gasoline tax money were signed Tuesday by Governor Holland.

The governor said he was "very greatly pleased at passage of the program" which he and county commissioners worked out early in the legislative session. He predicted that adoption of the amendment by voters in 1942 will mean that the gas tax problem "will be permanently solved."

He expressed gratitude to the State Association of County Commissioners, which at the beginning of the session backed a rival gas tax plan, and to the 100 members of the legislature.

"Several worthwhile objectives have been accomplished by passage of the bills," he declared. "The additional credits set up will take care with certainty of needs of all counties for the first two years before the amendment, if ratified, can become effective."

"Under the redefinition of a gas tax surplus, as well as the added direct appropriation for roads, the next two years will see a material enlargement of the road building program and much improved maintenance."

"Adoption of the constitutional amendment will mean that the problem will have been permanently solved."

The new program gives the state road department four, instead of the present three, cents of the tax on a gallon of gasoline and cuts the county's down from three to two cents of the tax.

It gives the counties credits for money they have spent on all roads turned over to the state through this session of the legislature.

The four bills signed Tuesday will become effective at the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1.

Governor Holland's Proclamation Designates May 30 Through June 7 Florida Defense Registration Week; To Enroll Workers

Tallahassee, May 22.—In a proclamation issued today, Governor Holland designated the period of May 30 to June 7 as Florida Defense Registration Week and called upon all loyal, patriotic citizens of the state to go to such places as may have been set apart for that purpose by their respective county defense councils, to enroll themselves and to offer their services for such duties as may be assigned them in connection with State Defense program.

In his proclamation Governor Holland called attention to the fact that under the state of emergency proclaimed by the President of the United States and recognized by the legislature of the State of Florida in the act creating the State Defense Council, it has become the duty and the privilege of all loyal citizens of Florida to contribute, as each is able, to such volunteer services as may be calculated to promote the safety of the State and Nation against the threat of aggression and to insure the security of civilization and democracy throughout the world. Attention is also called to the efforts of the State Defense Councils and the several County Defense Councils to secure the names of such volunteers through the registration of all citizens, both men and women 15 years of age or over, for such services as may be called upon to perform in furtherance of State and National security. This registration is essential to efficient organized defense activities, in the judgment of the Governor, in order that the capacities, skills and inclinations of all available persons may be catalogued, classified and assigned to appropriate duties, when needed to further the defense program.

As set forth in the Governor's proclamation and as announced by the State Defense Council in letters to all officers of County Defense Councils, the registration thus authorized will begin May 30 and run through June 7. The opening day will be Memorial Day, generally observed as a holiday and has great patriotic significance and because of that significance will afford wonderful opportunity for assembling prospective registrants to visit the places designated by County Defense Councils as places where registry books will be kept for the convenience of the people of that community or district, thus making registration as easy as possible.

"The chairman of the various county councils have been authorized to register only those boys and girls and men and women in their respective jurisdiction as will do so voluntarily. No pressure is to be brought to bear upon any who may hesitate when asked to sign their names and list their qualifications. 'We want it distinctly understood,' said Executive Director Burr of the State of Defense Council, 'that we want the names only of those who will sign the registration books or sheets of their own free will and offer their services to their country as volunteers, should they be called upon to serve at any time during the existing emergency. No undue emergency. No undue pressure of any kind must be brought to bear in any instance.'"

"The object of the registration," said Carl Broeura, Vice-Chairman of the State Defense Council, "is to provide a necessary personnel pool from which to draw volunteers in every division, in case there should be need."

Not only the names and addresses of the men and women registering are wanted but we would like to have an idea of what each registrant is best fitted to do, so that he or she may be properly classified. That is absolutely necessary if the best results are to be obtained. If a man is a steam fitter, for instance, we want to know that so that in a call for carpenters, he would not waste his time in being sent to fill that call. What is true of men is also true of women. We want to know what she wants to do and is best fitted to do, so that if she is a stenographer, and wants to do stenographic work, she will not be assigned to fill a call for nurses."

"We hope the registrants will find out during registration week will be as explicit as to the qualifications of the registrant as it is possible to make them. It will greatly facilitate the work of the county as well as the state council. The real work in connection with the registration will come after the lists are all in the hands of the officers of the several county councils and the cataloging and classification of the volunteers is undertaken."

"Here is something the members of the State Council as well as those of the several county councils wish, the newspaper of the State as well as any speakers who may talk at meetings or over the radio would impress upon all prospective registrants. We want all to register even though they may have registered for the same or a similar purpose during the last few weeks or months, under some other auspices. We know that the American Legion and its Auxiliary and some other organizations have conducted registrations and that many have signed them. However, we would like to have all those who did register under any other auspices, to register again, this time so that our files will be complete. Our registration will not conflict with any other or place the registrant under any further obligation."

"I regard the registration of volunteer defense workers now being called for by the Florida State Council of Defense, as a patriotic duty and responsibility," said Lisle Smith, postmaster of the American Legion in Florida and now a member of the State Council of Defense. "The American Legion and its Auxiliary did carry out a statewide registration of their respective memberships but I am firmly of the belief that those who registered then should register again so that the records of the State and County Defense Councils may be as complete as possible and save the time which might have to be wasted if it were necessary to ask the keepers of American Legion records for volunteers from their registration lists to fill calls state or national calls for volunteers of certain callings or qualifications. As far as it lies in my power, I am urging my American Legion friends and comrades to register again."

Then the song died away and the plane journey over Florida continued. Miami had been left behind and the speaker was describing the Overseas Highway to Key West. He pointed out Matamoras, Key and related the tragedy that occurred there. He told the history of Key West and impressed upon his listeners its strategic position as the southernmost American city.

Swinging about, the plane began its journey northward, which gave the spokesman an opportunity to tell of the Everglades and he knew his subject. He called attention to the Tamiami Trail, to the canals, mentioned the agriculture, all development around the Lake.

Turning west, his next objective proved to be Ft. Myers. "Home of Edison," he said, "City of Palms." (He could have been reading from a Chamber of Commerce brochure.) Then up the west coast he gave equally accurate descriptions of Sarasota: "Ringling's gave their winter quarters here, you know, and that building on the right is the famous Ringling Art Museum." "Now we cut across the bay to have a look at St. Petersburg. It is called the 'Sunshine City' and one of the newspapers here is given away every day that the sun fails to shine."

Now and then a plane companion would break in with an inquiry: "Isn't that another large city across the water?" was asked. The guide on this strange aerial journey seemed to know all the answers, for he promptly replied "Yes, that is Tampa, famous for its cigar industry and its Gasparilla Carnival. It is connected with St. Petersburg by the Gandy Bridge. We are flying directly over it right now."

Turning east, the route covered a good portion of central Florida; Plant City, Lake Wales and Lake Wales were mentioned as clearly visible below. The Boki Singing Tower was given a most detailed description as the imaginary plane was supposed to be circling above this Shrine and Sanctuary. Next came Orlando, a brief mention of citrus production and the position of this central Florida city in relation to it. Ocala and Silver Springs were not overlooked, although they were thoroughly "looked over," and here again the description might have been taken bodily from one of "Shorty Davidson's printed booklets."

Next came Gainesville and the University, then the conversation died out again and a chorus of male voices began singing our own Florida song. Continuing north as far as Lake City, which was briefly mentioned, the plane turned west and the lady buswoman pointed out. Here again the chorus came in to sing "Way Down Upon the Swannee River." Then came detailed descriptions of Tallahassee and Pensacola.

The narrator seemed to be as well informed as a professional tourist guide. He mentioned every industry and resource in the state, every point of interest, and with complete accuracy—but he was absolutely silent on the subject of "defense." He did not mention Camp Blanding, McCall Field, the Naval Training Station, or Naval Air Base—probably because he didn't consider them worth mentioning. "The program, an announcer advised, was from BEELIN—a 'greeting,' he said 'to all our DEAR FRIENDS in Beautiful Florida.'—It appears that the German Luftwaffe is well posted on this state. Maybe it's time we took Martindale and Dakar—the next German planes may not be 'imaginary.'"

Cane cutters in the plantations of the United States Sugar Corporation put away their cane knives for another season last week, ending the greatest harvest season in the history of the Everglades sugar production from the standpoint of sugar produced.
